PROCEEDS TO DINING HALL UPGRADE

From the Publisher

A belated greeting and FREE tickets!

Hi, Friends:

My name is Brad and I am the publisher of the Northwest Iowa Shopper, the Spencer Reporter and the Dickinson County News. Some of you subscribers have probably seen a couple of my columns. I work for the Hall family, new owners of these publications. The Halls have deep roots in the Clay County area and in its print publications, and they are excited to own these properties. More on that later. But for now...

A superb offer:

We have done a deal with the Minnesota Renaissance Festival for tickets to this year's event, which is primarily in September. You will see an advertisement for it in this and following weeks' editions.

If you buy a new, one-year subscription to the twice-weekly Reporter ($99 locally) or the once-weekly Dickinson County News ($50 locally), we will give you up to four free tickets to the Renaissance Festival to be used during the 2022 show run. May I suggest that you plan to attend the Clay County Fair and Okoboji events in September as usual, but then use these tickets and turn September into one big, late-summer weekendcation (a new word, I think). The tickets are worth about $26 apiece, so four of them actually pay for the entire year of the Reporter and two years' worth of the News! You will see the details for this in an advertisement in this edition.

We never want to forget our existing customers, and if you renew for a year at the regular prices, you can get two tickets to the festival.

As for our transition...

Through our first four months, we have set up the operations so they mesh with existing ones in Charles City, New Hampton, Nashua and Algona. We have made some improvements in our press equipment, implemented some new software in accounting, circulation and the websites, done a lot of training, and tried really hard to make sure that you got your products on time. We have also aimed to retain the existing staff. Many times when companies change hands, the new owners do a lot of sweeping of the staff; the Hall family is more interested in retaining the people who know the job.

Even now, there are still setup items being addressed.

A promise

I'm not much into promises, because proof is a much better measure. But I promise that we as a team will do our best to give you our best. We appreciate all of our customers, readers and communities. We appreciate all of the investments you have made by trusting us with your advertising and your search for news.
